

The OTHER WOMAN (Gordon's lover)

Don't be modest. I like it when a woman knows she's beautiful. Women nowadays—they don't know how to walk into a room. A beautiful woman should walk into a room thinking: I am beautiful and I know how to walk in these shoes. There's so little glamour in the world these days. It makes daily life such a bore. Women are responsible for enlivening dull places like train stations. There is hardly any pleasure in waiting for a train anymore. The women just—walk in. Horrible shoes. No confidence. Bad posture.

A woman should be able to take out her compact and put lipstick on her lips with absolute confidence. No apology.

The Other Woman takes out lipstick and puts it on her lips, slowly.